NARRATIVE.

PROLOGUE.

(Suggested Music, "Tell Me That You Love Me". perhaps played as background)

On the afternoon of June 24th, 1894,
Twenty Palo Alto women kicked up
Little swirls of dust along the village paths
As they hurried to the old Presbyterian Church
On the corner of Waverley and University Avenue,
Eager to form a Women's Club.
United by Common needs,
Their purpose stern and solemn,
They were set on being practical.
The ladies in our story are true characters
In the History of Palo Alto,
Excepting for Young Mrs. Gayheart
Whom we created to represent the impulse toward
The lighter things in life.

SCENE 11 1894-96

(Suggested Music, "Daisy, Daisy".)

At once the work began.
There was no high school for the boys and girls,
And the women of the Club wanted education for their children.
The school trustees could and would pay for a teacher,
But there was no house
For a high school.
Mrs. Zschokke, of the Women's Club,
Build a small house in back of her home, on Hamilton Avenue.
After the women of the Club had helped her carry
Her furniture from the big to the little house
They set up long tables and put chairs around them.

And the boys and girls were brought in from Their carefree roaming in
 The warm, yellow fields to take up learning
 Under the tutelage of Miss Rebecca Green
 Who is the first teacher of whom we have knowledge.

SCENE 111. 1894-96

(Suggested Music, "She was Only Pansy Blossom" or "Strawberry Blonde.")

Even as the ladies worked on the school
 They dreamed of a library.
 The Club had no dues,
 But, undaunted by their lack of funds,
 They organized a Book Social;
 Collected 100 Books
 And opened a downtown reading room.
 At first the ladies took turns as librarian,
 Taking their children with them
 They spent the day in the room
 Giving out books to hungry readers
 And giving lunch to their hungry children.

SCENE 1V 1896-1916

(Suggested Music, "Silver Threads Among the Gold", "Beautiful
 Lady", "Down By the Old Mill Stream", "Alexander's Rag Time Band.")

For five years from 1896 to 1901
 The Women's Club ran the Library.
 During that time, it grew out of it's room
 Into a house,
 And the ladies raised money to pay a librarian.
 In 1901, the Library became a City Institution.
 Four years later,

Through an Andrew Carnegie donation of $10,000.

The Library that we know, was built,

That building was enlarged, and we have our fine big library

Which grew from the small, eager beginning

Fifty years ago.

At the same time the women were busy in other fields,

The Village Improvement Committee,

Part of the Club,

Bought, paid for and planted trees,

Little struggling Peppers along Alma Street,

Small, hopeful Magnolias on University Avenue,

And the ladies, assisted by their husbands,

Went in their buggies-

Buckets in their hands,

And watered the trees,

So they brought their dreams to life.

Mrs. Gayheart was active in these years,

For the Women's Club enjoyed many functions,

Receptions, teas and dances,

And tasted many a delicious repast,

Daintily and exquisitely served.

The first members planned to be practical,

And so they were.

What they wanted, they worked for-

What had to be done, they did.

In the Spring of 1903

An epidemic of typhoid struck the town.

The ladies provided food for the victims

Carrying it to the improvised hospital where they lay.

In 1904 the Club was incorporated

And the dream of a clubhouse began to take concrete form
In the development of a "lot fund".

A short time later, the lot was purchased.

Altho misgivings were great because the corner at Homer and
Cowper was so far out of town.

On April 18th, 1906,

The Secretary wrote in the book of minutes-

"Today we had no meeting because of great shock of earthquake.

Shock occurred at 5:18 A.M.

Scarcely a house stands undamaged

In all of Palo Alto,

We are helping refugees from San Francisco."

Two weeks later, the regular meeting

Of the Women's Club was held.

The ladies went on with their business.

Now, they were in full battle dress,

Fighting toward the building of the Clubhouse.

To this end, in 1910 they published a book

"The Santa Clara Vally",

5,000 copies were printed and sold-

The proceeds, $1,500.00, went into the building fund.

Sponsored by the Women's Club,

Helen Keller came to town.

She spoke to a crowd that filled the largest hall in Palo Alto

And the resultant proceeds went into the building fund.

The Club ladies, encouraged by their first publishing
Venture,

Compiled a cook-book,

Filled with cherished recipes,

Which they published and sold,

And the proceeds went into the building fund.

Mrs. Gayheart was at her best,

For many parties were given

For the Clubhouse fund.

Costume parties, receptions, and food markets were held.

Every means was used to raise an honest penny.

At last the day arrived-

On September 22nd, 1916.

The Palo Alto Women's Club

Opened the Clubhouse.

SCENE V. 1916-17.

(Suggested Music, "Over There".)

In less than a year

The Country was at War.

The Women's Club was besieged by the demands of the Nation.

They set aside their personal projects.

All of their thought and effort went into War work.

They bought Bonds! They entertained for the soldiers

At Camp Fremont.

They worked at the Base hospital

And they worked for the Red Cross.

SCENE VI.

(suggested Music. "Who, Who's afraid of the Big Bad Wolf",
"Happy Day's are Here Again", "Flat Foot Floogie", "God Bless America", Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition", "Comin' in on a Wing and a Prayer.")

Peace Came,

The War was won.

The Women's Club returned to its normal activities.

The advent of Women's Suffrage extended their interest in Legislation.

The little village of Palo Alto grew into a City.

A street car came into it and was crowded out by the bus system.

Along University Avenue, the magnolia trees blossomed.

Women began to take their place in business.

Contract Bridge made its debut.

New organizations came to town-

The Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the Business Women's Club,

The Beautiful Community Center, and many other groups

Received help from the Women's Club.

The Economic depression spread over the Nation.

The Women's Club rode out the storm

And kept the Clubhouse going.

True to their original plan,

They were practical.

With other Women's Clubs

They worked for reform legislation.

Tuberculin tests for Dairy Cattle,

Joint Guardianship of children,

Health Certificate for Marriage,

Community Property Rights for Married Women,

And the Preservation of the Redwoods.

All these they achieved.

And still, with all this work,

Mrs. Gayheart kept her pace,

For thru the 1930's,

Parties, plays and dances were held in the Clubhouse.

Each year brought it's own special needs,

And each year the Women's Club responded,

Working and playing too.

Until Pearl Harbor and World War II

Presented the Women's Club with a long list of demands.

Once again the ladies gave long hours of work

To the Red Cross.

Once again they undertook to provide entertainment for

The men in the Service of Uncle Sam.

Once more the needs of the Army Hospital are being answered

For the Women's Club has furnished a sun room, there, and the boys returned from battle,

are finding musical instruments, the gift of the Women's Club,

At hand for their amusement.

Music before curtain rises "Over There", and then one stanza of "God Save Our Men", girls' voices.

SCENE V. A few days before Christmas 1917.

Mrs. Morrison, President of the Club -

Mrs. Gayheart -

Mrs. Hubbard -

Mrs. Lakin -

Mrs. Frink -

At the left of the stage is a large table at which Mrs. Frink and Mrs. Morrison are seated, and Mrs. Gayheart in a rocking chair sewing on a baby jacket. To the right of the stage is another table. There is a decorated Christmas tree on the stage.

Mrs. Gayheart: It seems strange that only a year ago we opened the club house, and now we are in a war, and I'm making bonnets for Belgian babies.

Mrs. Morrison (A little tired). The club house-warming seems a long time back. So much has happened. It was a triumph, but now we have the job of making payments to the bank at the same time that we are buying bonds and supporting European civilian relief. And now we're planning a Christmas party for ourselves on top of all that.

Mrs. Frink: It's a good thing that we didn't know that the war was coming or we wouldn't have had the courage to go ahead and build the house. I'm glad that we have it.

Mrs. Morrison (laughing). It's a good place for making bandages.

Mrs. Gayheart: And we were very fortunate to have it so that we could give parties for those boys stationed out at Camp Fremont. They're such nice boys and appreciate the parties so much. It's quite fun to have them out there. It makes me feel so safe.

Mrs. Frink: Of course we'll be able to use the Liberty Bonds that we buy to pay off the debt on the house after the war is over.

Mrs. Morrison: That's true, but I'm president now. It all seems a far-ery from our usual activities..

Sound of a slamming door and Mrs. Hubbard, a very young and pretty women enters right. Her arms are full of packages and she is dressed in outdoor clothes.

Mrs. Hubbard: Hello, everybody. Just wait until you see the things that I bought.

Mrs. Gayheart gets up and goes to her and helps her put the packages on the table. Mrs. Hubbard takes off her coat and helps Mrs. Gayheart unwrap the packages.

Mrs. Gayheart: Did You get the figs and nuts for the candy?

Mrs. Hubbard: Yes, but they're being delivered. I just brought the gifts. I'm getting such fun out of this party. I'm so glad that we're having it.

Mrs. Gayheart: Of course you are.

Mrs. Morrison: I suppose that we are entitled to spend a little money for our own private fun, but --- (she pauses doubtfully).

Mrs. Hubbard: It won't cost very much, and we've put money into bonds, and we've bought supplies for the Red Cross, and we've contributed to Belgian relief, and we've put on those parties for the soldiers. I want some fun myself. Everyone wants this Chris tmas party.

Mrs. Morrison: They apparently want it all right. But it takes a lot of energy to put on a party and we're all so busy.

Mrs. Hubbard: Don't act so dubious about it. We're going to have the party.

Mrs. Gayheart: I'm going to make the candy for the party out of groundfruit and nuts. It takes no sugar. It was in the book of war recipes that we got here at the Club along with the flourless bread and the meatless meat. (Pause.) That doesn't seem quite possible but you know what I mean. Oh look, a combing jacket!

(she holds up a be-ribboned and embroidered combing jacket.)

Mrs. Morrison: How pretty!

Mrs. Gayheart: Well, yes, but I hope that I don't get it. For some reason it takes me much longer to comb my hair with a combing jacket.

Mrs. Hubbard: We have aprons. Would you prefer an apron? Where is the tissue paper and the ribbon?

Mrs. Gayheart: I've found it, dear.

They begin folding the tissue paper and wrapping the packages

Mrs. Hubbard: Can't you stop rolling bandages long enough to look at some of these things?

Mrs. Frink: I suppose we can.

Sound of door and Mrs. Kain enters right. She is dressed in outdoor clothes which she takes off and hangs up. They exchange greetings.

Mrs. Lakin: I'm sorry to be late.

Mrs. Morrison: That's all right. We're getting along.

Mrs. Lakin: I've been at the Base Hospital. It breaks my heart to see those boys out there so far from their homes on Christmas.

I wish that I could send each one of them home for the holidays.

Mrs. Gayheart: What a good idea. It would do them good. I should think with all the bonds we've been buying the Army could afford that.

Mrs. Lakin: Of course it's not possible, and they're all sick anyway.

Mrs. Hubbard: Is'nt anything planned for them?

Mrs. Lakin: Not a thing. Some of them haven't even received presents from home.

Mrs. Hubbard: What a cold Christmas?

Mrs. Gayheart: Let's put on a Christmas party for them! We'll buy each of them a gift.

Mrs. Morrison: We wouldn't have time.

Mrs. Frink: And I'm sure that we wouldn't have the money now.

Mrs. Morrison: We simply couldn't do it and have our own party, and everyone is so set on this party.

Mrs. Hubbard (begins to unwrap the package she is wrapping) I'm sure I can take thses things back and exchange them for gifts for thses boys.

Mrs. Gayheart: We'll take the Christmas tree over there, and the sugarless candy will be just fine for sick boys.

Mrs. Morrison: But we can't. The Club members are expecting their party. It would be too big a job. We would have to call everyone.

Mrs. Hubbard: Who cares! The Women's Club likes big jobs. Come on Mrs. Gayheart, I'll have to hurry to get these things back.

Mrs. Frink: I'll help with the telephoning.

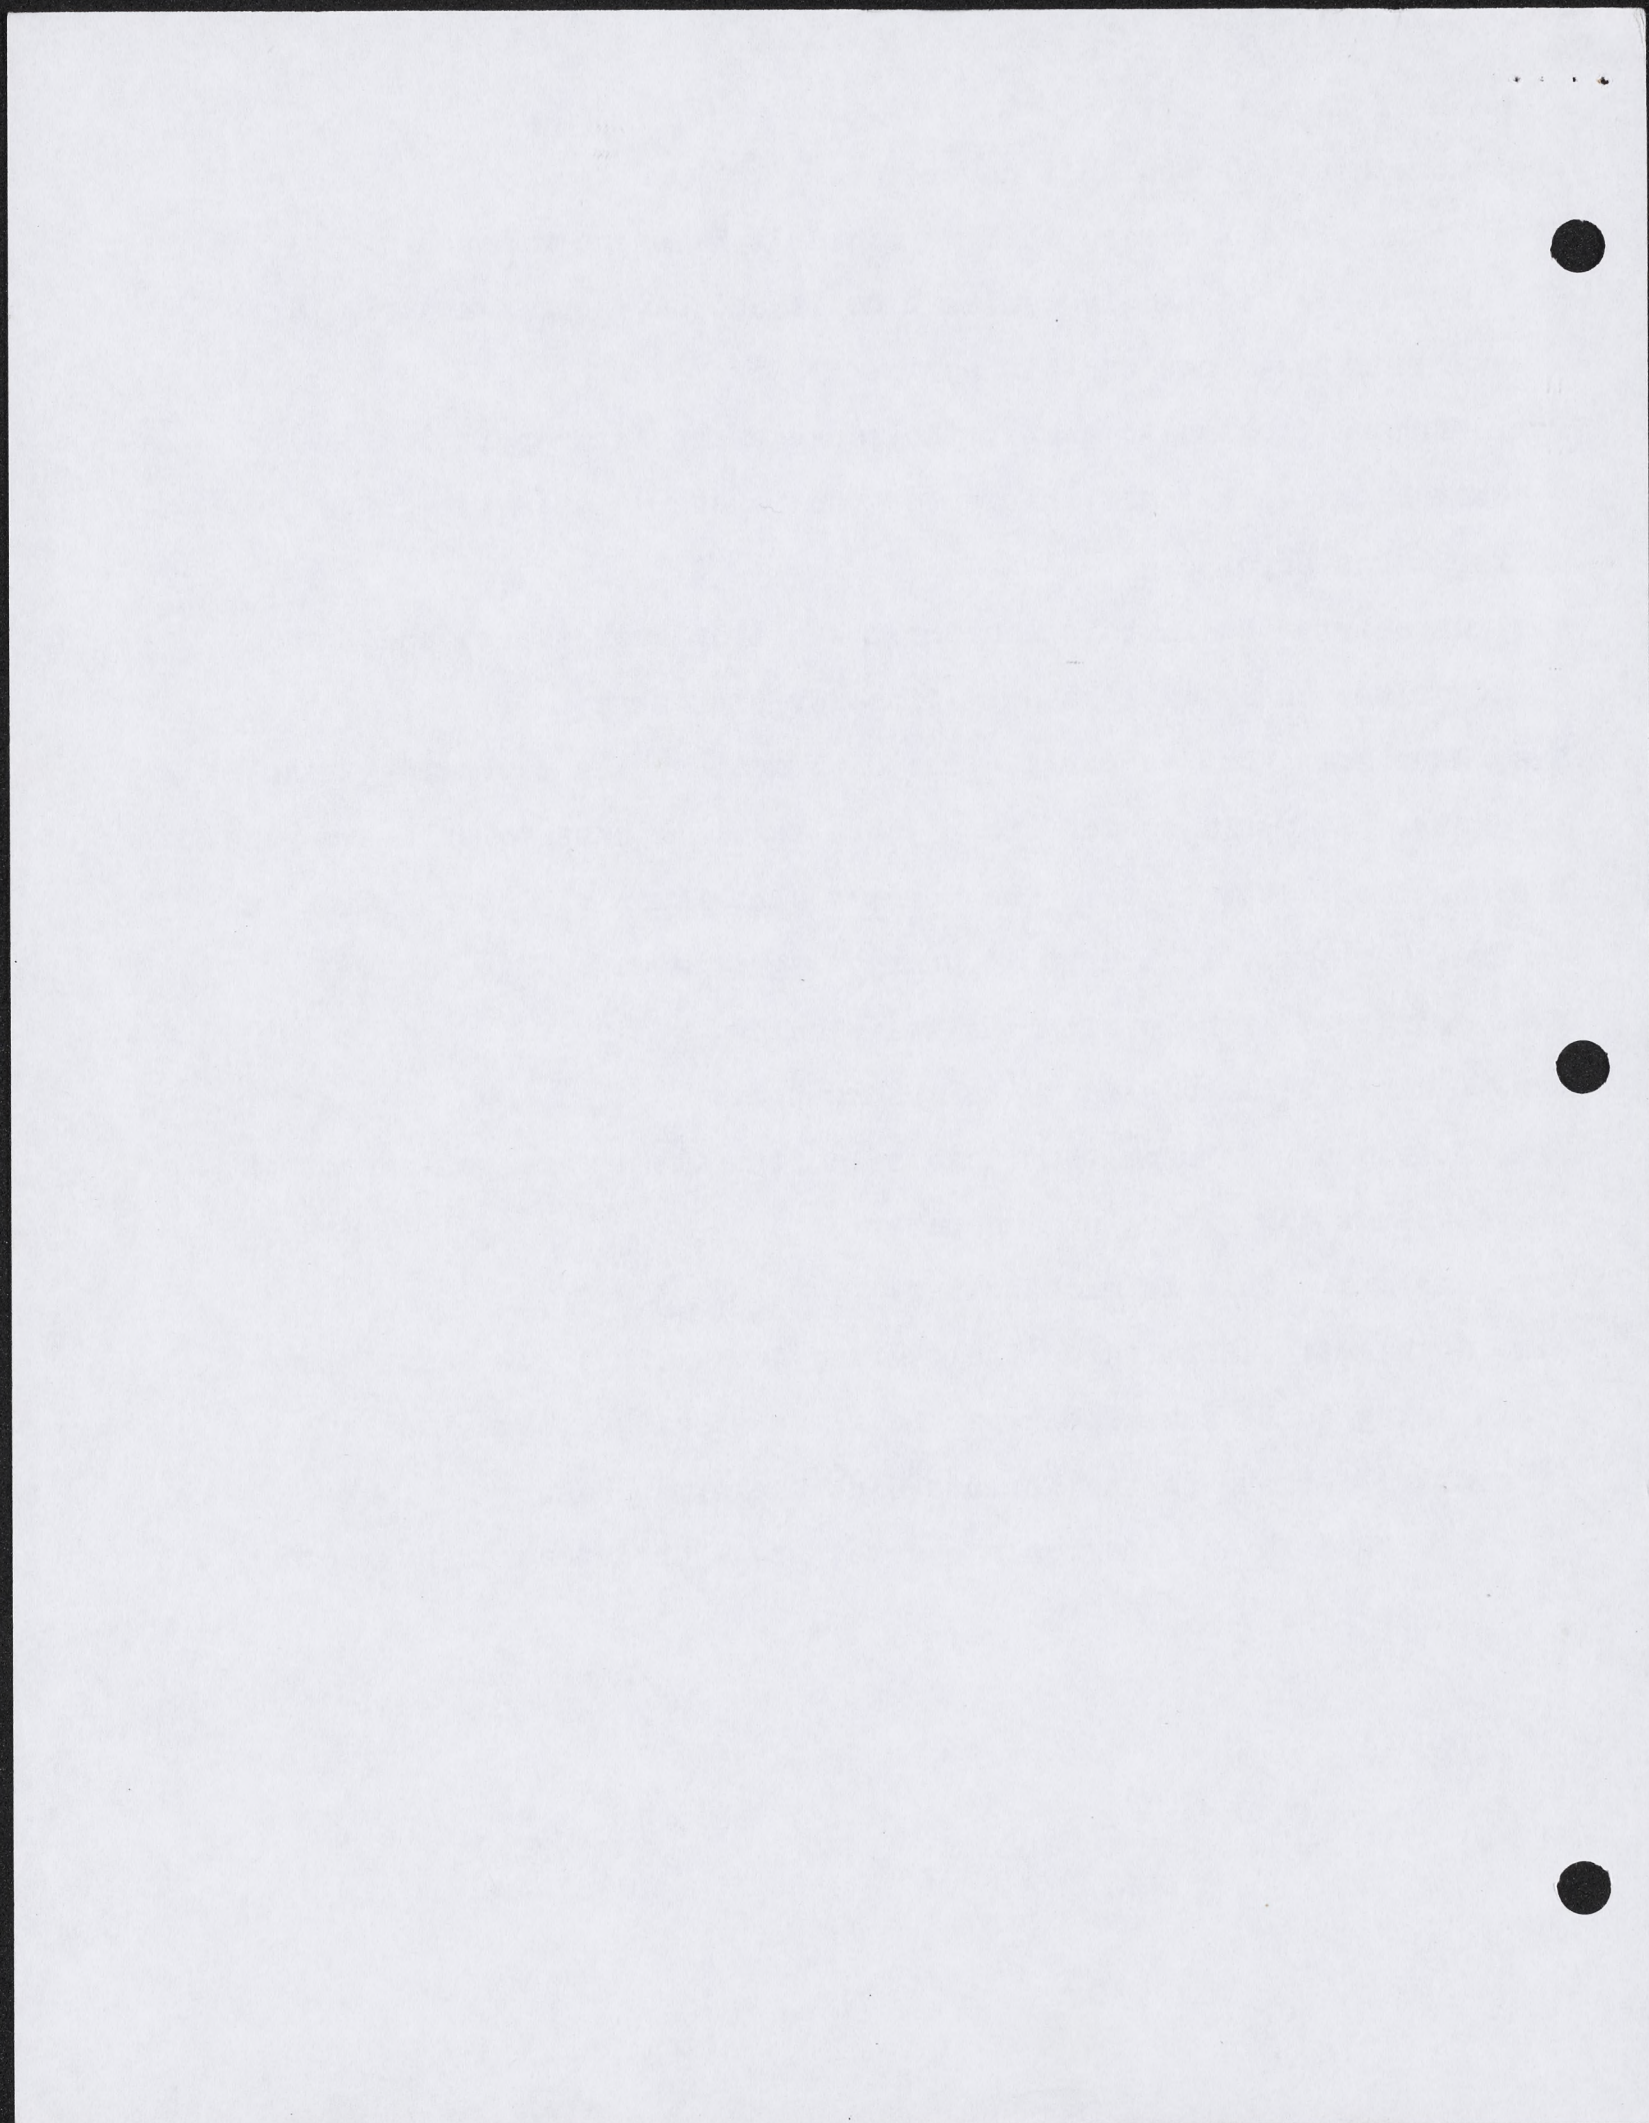

Mrs. Lakin: I'll be glad to telephone too.

Mrs. Morrison: I think that this is a fine idea. Are you sure that you can stand giving up the party?

Mrs. Hubbard: This is much better.

Mrs. Gayheart: (Holding up the combing jacket) My, but Santa Claus is going to be surprised when he finds shaving lotion instead of combing jackets in the Women's Club Christmas bag.

CURTAIN and the men's quartet sings Christmas or patriotic songs.

As this wonderful year draws to a close, I extend my deep thanks to each of you for your loving kindness, cooperation and help to me and our Club. I'm proud of all of you. Because of your dedication, over the years up through this year's most recent member, our Club is celebrating it's 75th Anniversary. Thank you for the honor of serving as your President.

'A pretty girl is like a melody ...'

Dancing stars on stage

After the box supper the Heston Beaudoins of Palo Alto danced the Diamond Jubilee Waltz.

Woman's Club of Palo Alto joined by friends to mark 75th year

Wednesday was a festive day and nostalgic evening for members and friends of the Woman's Club of Palo Alto.

Like the city of Palo Alto, the club also is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year. To mark the Diamond Jubilee the members transformed their 53-year-old clubhouse on the corner of Cowper Street and Homer Avenue into a country store and staged a fair and box social.

The all-day fair was open to the public and attracted a couple of hundred visitors, who shopped for handmade gifts and goodies and enjoyed a program of music and dance.

The box social in the evening was for members and guests, who were greeted upon arrival by Mrs. A. W. Baily Jr., president and chairman of the celebration.

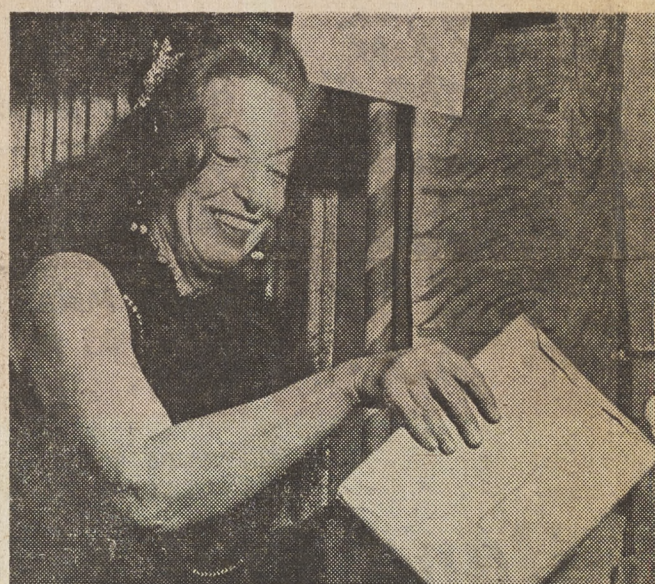

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of the club's senior citizen award to Mrs. J. P. Baumberger of Palo Alto for her outstanding service to the club and the community. Dr. Baumberger, Stanford emeritus professor of physiology, was there to applaud his wife along with the other guests.

Since coming to Palo Alto in 1919 Mrs. Baumberger has been an active member of the community. She served as president of the Woman's Club of Palo Alto and the Stanford Faculty Women's Club, was a charter member of the Zonta Club and a supervisor in the North County office of the Santa Clara County Welfare Department.

CLUB HONORED

The Woman's Club of Palo Alto also received honors. A 75th anniversary scroll in recognition and appreciation of its distinguished service to the community and nation was presented from the General Federation of Women's Club, Washington, D.C., by Mrs. Albert Krug of San Juan Bautista. Mrs. Krug is president of the Loma Prieta District of the California Federation of Women's Clubs. She also gave the club a certificate of appreciation from the district, which covers King City to Palo Alto and includes 20 clubs.

Throughout the evening the guests were entertained with Guy Wallick's Haywire Orchestra. Directed by Wallick, the orchestra now is in its 32nd year and is composed of Wallick, William Mudgett, Oliver Johnson and Emmett Fitzpatrick, all Palo Altans, and Roland Howes of San Francisco.

She was in charge

It's the old grab bag bit at the Palo Alto Woman's Club as President Mrs. A. W. Baily reaches for a gift in old tin wash tub. She is wearing a Paris frock from the 1920s loaned by Mrs. Marion M. Thomas of Palo Alto.

Special guests

Mrs. Albert Krug of San Juan Bautista, left, president of Loma Prieta District, California Federation of Women's Clubs; and Mrs. Warren Grass of Mountain View, state chairman for Armed Forces and Veterans Affairs.

Playing post office

Mrs. Mahlon Rickett, left, a board member of the woman's club, and Mrs. Theodore M. Olson, treasurer, staff the post office booth at the Country Fair. The letter box was resurrected from the basement of the Palo Alto

Post Office for the event. Mrs. Rickett is wearing a beaded crepe dress she purchased in Chicago in 1920. Mrs. Olson is wearing a dress originally belonging to Mrs. Mario Paccioretti's mother and dating to 1916.

Mrs. J. P. Baumberger honored

Kenneth Wilson, left, director of Palo Alto Department of Community Services, joins Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Baumberger to admire plaque she received for outstanding service to club and community.

Do the Right Thing Try shower of diapers

By ELIZABETH L. POST
of the Emily Post Institute

Dear Mrs. Post: My older sister is expecting her first child soon. I have a three-year-old and will lend her all of my baby clothes and furniture. She will not need anything for her baby, and I thought of giving her diaper service. I would like to have a small group to my house and have them all pitch in for this gift. What would be a proper way to word the invitations as it would cost at least $4 from each person for this service.—Mrs. R.

Dear Mrs. R.: This is an interesting idea—if you are sure that your sister would not like to have a few things for her baby which are given to her, and not merely borrowed from you. Send out shower invitation cards and write at the bottom: "We are hoping to give Sue a year of diaper service. If you would like to contribute, it would cost each of us $4. If not, I know Sue will appreciate anything you choose—the baby's room is yellow."

Dear Mrs. Post: Banquet managers of three different hotels advised us that a Bar Mitzvah cake should be ordered. However, one banquet manager suggested we not cut the cake at all, but simply take it home after the luncheon. A second suggested we cut the cake, put it into small boxes and present the boxes to our guests to take home with them, as is done with wedding cakes. A third manager suggested that some sort of candle-lighting ceremony be held with members of the family or very close friends each lighting one of the 13 candles. They would then cut the cake and serve it. May we have your suggestions, please?—Mrs. C.S.

Dear Mrs. S.: I vote for the last suggestion. The cake should certainly be served to the guests, and your son could even wish on the cake with a birthday cake.

In setting the table for serving cards, is it necessary to have coffee service on the table, or is it optional? Must one put a glass of water on the table? Gladys. You need set out only coffee is to be served in place the coffee spoon on the table, put it beside the coffee inside if the coffee is to be served in the desert.

Pick a light travel wardrobe tries will be very cool.

Cool climates call for a coat, sweaters and a wool skirt or jumper. Wool knits pack well.

If travel plans call for many different types of clothes, it may be wise to arrange to send some home when they are no longer needed. For instance, if the first leg of your

Two guidelines will help assemble any travel wardrobe. Aim to take as few clothes as possible and begin gathering a wardrobe by selecting items from your own closet. It's there that you will be most likely to find comfortable, flattering clothes and you'll know which are the least likely to wrinkle.

It's important to know the customs of the country concerning dress. Even when the weather is hot, sleeveless dresses are not acceptable attire in churches in Italy and Spain.

Take along a dress with sleeves or carry a scarf in your handbag with which to cover bare shoulders before

By JUDY LOVE

In grandmother's time, winter was the favorite season of expert needleworkers. Those were the days when most every yarn was warm and woolly, and knitters welcomed the brisk weather in order to wear their wardrobe of custom knits.

Now, hand knit and crocheted fashions follow the sun, and some of the year's smartest designs are styled in featherweight summer yarns. The tunics I'm featuring today certainly are sunlovers. Both are styled in Bernat's Cott'n Silk, a lightly textured yarn that keeps its summer cool.

The V-neck topper is knitted, and instructions are simple enough even for the beginner. A ribbed effect circles the waistline—in slenderizing verticle rows. The longer length, accented with pockets at the border, emphasizes the slimming lines. Wear the tunic over a blouse or as a sleeveless top with a silk scarf tucked into the neckline.

The second summer tunic, a lacy, open-work pattern, is a crocheted design. Like its knitted counterpart, the tunic can be worn with skirts, slacks or over a simple fitted dress. And at the beach, the crocheted top will make quite a splash—worn over your swimsuit.

Instructions for making both tunics in small, medium and large—to fit sizes 8 to 18, are available. For your copy of an instruction leaflet, send 50 cents to Stichin' Time, c/o The Palo Alto Times, P. O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. Be sure to ask for leaflet S169, and include your name, address and zip code.

DEAR JUDY LOVE: I have a sweater, knitted in a stockinette stitch, which comes to just below my waist. Since the newest styles are much longer, I'd like to lengthen the sweater. Is this possible? The sweater, by the way has a ribbed border.—A. L.

DEAR A. L.: Yes, it is possible to lengthen your sweater. You can follow this procedure for any of your sweaters which are knitted in stockinette.

First, open the side seams of the sweater. At a point two rows above the ribbing, pull a thread through across the front and back of the garment, cutting the ribbing off from the rest of the garment. You do this by cutting one stitch near the edge of the work at the seam and pulling the yarn gently.

Next, pick up stitches at the bottom of the stockinette portion of the garment with one needle. With a second needle, pick up the stitches at the top of the ribbing. Attach yarn from a new skein to the stockinette portion and knit in stockinette to the desired length. Then join the stockinette and the ribbed sections with a kitchener stitch. The result—a new look for an old favorite. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

STORM: SAN FRANCISQUITO CREEK

All the long summer, out of dry creek bed
Weed and willow lifted thrust and spread,
Leaf-dappling sand and carved out water course
That curved between the banks of roots and gorse.

Now in the dark, creek waters swirl again
With drum-insistent spill of heavy rain;
The sound of urgent falling, filling up
Crevice and hole as coffee fills a cup...

This morning boys in kayaks ride the rush
Of swift cascade between the flattened push
Of twig and leaf. Was it the day before
That they were hiking here on sandy floor?

Hamilton Avenue, Palo Alto

Sun shafts through mist green pepper trees
Gilds half-trunks of weeping birch,
Separates yellow leaves,
Thin whips of branches;
Burnishes hawthorne berries --
Everywhere: italics of light!

Now a child on her bicycle
Flares round a corner,
Flame scintillating the whirring wheels,
Staining her long hair: framing
The heel of her dragging foot
Where she slows
